“It is my privilege to serve as an advocate and leader for Friends of Yemin Orde and the children of Yemin Orde Youth Village. The Village and its staff overcame the challenges of displacement when the wildfire tore through their area, and now we need to help rebuild Yemin Orde into the beautiful and therapeutic refuge it was a year ago,” said Gwirtsman. “Despite the fire, the team at Yemin Orde, through the Yemin Orde Initiatives, continued to expand the use of the Village’s Derech Kfar holistic educational methodology towards an increasing number of children at risk and educators in Israel. I look forward to working with the Board and our donors to dramatically increase the reach of these programs.”

Gwirtsman has nearly 25 years of experience in business, volunteer and philanthropic activities in the Denver community. In addition to Friends of Yemin Orde, he and his wife Nancy are also active in Seeking Common Ground, Jewish Family Services of Colorado, AIPAC, the Allied Jewish Federation, Hillel of Colorado, the American Jewish Committee, Denver Academy and other Jewish and secular nonprofit organizations.
